Paying for Transport: Improving Quality and Choice (Proceedings of the Institution of Civil Engineers) Institution of Civil Engineers

This special report issued by the Institution looks at the issues key to developing our transport systems. It covers topics such as: the funding of our transport service; the relationship between the standards of service and what transport users actually pay; the additional sources of funding required to increase overall spending; the changes required to increase overall spending; the changes required in the framework of institutions which provide or manage transport; and the creation of a new framework of transport and planning authorities, at regional and local level, to deliver the integrated transport and land use policies which are needed to fight congestion and pollution and to produce genuine choice to meet people's transport needs.
